More Men Like Nation's Father Needed for Present Reconstruction, Says Pastor of Calvary Methodist.
Assimilation of Immigrants Severe Test of American Church Missions Efficiency Declares Dr. H. A. Tupper.

George Washington was portrayed as the "executor of God's sovereign will" by the Rev. Herbert Randolph, D. D., last night at the Foundry Methodist Church in a sermon on "The Christianity of George Washington."

"In the life, character and work of Washington are presented the plan of God for the American Republic," said Dr. Randolph. "His character was fundamental to his life and work," he continued.

Dr. Randolph quoted the words of Lincoln: "To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington are alike impossible. Let none attempt it. In solemn awe we pronounce the name, and in naked, deathless splendor leave it shining on."

Speaking of the personal attributes of the greatest of Americans, Dr. Randolph said: "Legend may try to paint him as a faultless hero, but it is far more worthy to say of him that he was possessed of such high powers of self-restraint, such noble command of himself, that he was saved from being a victim of his natural tendencies, and while capable of great indignation, he never lost his self-control. More than all and above all, he was a perfect master of himself." As proof of these statements, he cited Washington's treatment of Saint Clair and his attitude toward Benedict Arnold.

Asserting that Washington was not only an exemplification of the highest type of character, but that he furnished a worthy subject of emulation in his relations to the church of which he was a member, Dr. Randolph said: "Evidence is not lacking as to the personal religious life of the Father of his Country. His public addresses and state papers were saturated with expressions of faith in God, his belief in the power of prayer, his intimate knowledge of the Bible, his pre-eminent devotion to the church and his hope of immortal life. He feared nothing except the Divine displeasure. The foundations of the moral world were shaken, but not the belief of George Washington. In a great crisis, he stood a tower of strength."

The Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, dean of Georgetown University, indorsed the recent deportations of reds, in the first of a series of sermons on the attitude of the Catholic Church toward current problems, last night at Holy Trinity Church.

"Certain ungrateful and ungracious men and women," he said, "have been placed upon ships and sent to other lands. These ingrates have been trying to burn the house that sheltered them; they have been brandishing weapons against their protectors. Their insincerity is proved by their violent unwillingness to go to Russia, the country where the Bolsheviks are in control."

The spread of Bolshevism is the result of clever advertising, he said. "The one great weapon needed for a new movement is to get some attractive motto," he said. "The Bolsheviks know this well and made full use of the word 'democracy,' which has an attractive sound these days and, strange to say, there have been found some not of their ilk, who in presence and on platform have thought well to gain prominence by crying out against these deportations, claiming that in so doing America is no longer the land of the free," continued the father.

The dean closed his discourse with a fervent plea for the respect of authority.

"There is only one institution," he said, "that can make the world safe for democracy, and democracy safe for the world, and that institution is the church. This a democracy may live and prosper, there must be a reverence for law and authority."

Father Nevils will continue the series throughout Lent, preaching each Sunday night. Other sermons will define the attitude of the Catholic Church toward spiritualism, labor unions and profiteering.

EXPERT OFFICE MEN TO SPEAK TO FIGHT REDS
Government Officials to Attend Conferences on System Tuesday.

Tuesday has been set aside for the attendance of government officials at the efficiency conferences arranged by the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association. Experts from various Federal and District departments will attend this meeting.

Many distinguished men in the Capitol have been invited to take part. It is understood the conferences will be of especial interest to the departments which have to do with accounting and business systems, especially the Treasury, commerce and labor, internal revenue and the Bureau of Efficiency.

A discussion of efficiency methods as applied to the business systems in use in the retail stores of the nation will be a feature of the conference. Shorland F. Fannon, business expert of the National Cash Register Company, will discuss some of the problems, including income tax returns.

Perhaps the most interesting part of his talk will be a short discussion of the part that welfare work plays in the promotion of efficiency in business. The speaker will tell of what the National Cash Register Company has done.

Fannon will also point out how industrial efficiency and efficiency in the operation of the stores of the nation are both necessary in the economical distribution of merchandise. He will also tell of the great importance of the right kind of advertising in building up a business.

Philip King, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, will preside at the meetings.

EAGLAN TRIAL IN MARYLAND
Colored Youth to Be Turned Over to Montgomery County for Trial.

Forest Eaglan, young Washington colored boy, who has been held in jail since last July pending extradition on a charge of attacking Miss Mary Saunders, of Somerset, near Chevy Chase Circle, on July 5 last, will be turned over to the authorities of Montgomery County tomorrow morning, according to announcement from the United States District Attorney's office.

Eaglan was captured and identified by Miss Saunders at a time when the entire city was aroused, the race riots had broken out and when Marylanders were threatening a lynching party from a series of assaults on women in the District's suburbs. Maj. Pullman refused to turn Eaglan over to the authorities of Montgomery County, where he is alleged to have committed the crime.

Eaglan has been indicted in the Montgomery County Circuit Court and his case docketed at Rockville for the March term of court.

Eaglan was a cadet for the Kirkside Country Club, located near the second of the crime, and has stoutly professed his innocence in the face of positive identification by Miss Saunders ever since his arrest.

DISCUSSES CORAL REEFS.
Coral reefs of American Samoa were discussed by Alfred G. Mayor, of the Carnegie Institute, at a joint meeting of the Washington Academy of Science and the Biological Society of Washington, Saturday night, at the Cosmos Club.

New York, Feb. 22.—Rev. William F. O'Hare, S. J., was appointed Bishop of Jamaica, West Indies, by Pope Benedict. His consecration will occur February 25 at the church of St. Ignatius Loyola here. Bishop O'Hare, 59, has been a professor in Fordham University and in the College of St. Francis Xavier.
